

REAL CONVERSATIONS: TOWELS

Written by
Justin Shady

INT. KB'S PARENTS' HOUSE (LIVING ROOM) - NIGHT

TITLE: NOVEMBER 22, 2015

KB (36) and JUSTIN (39) lie on the couch watching TV.

KB's mother, SOPHIE (60s), enters carrying a folded stack of freshly clean bath towels.

SOPHIE

Who keeps using the bath towels on the rack above the toilet?

JUSTIN

That would be me.

SOPHIE

Please don't do that anymore. Only use the towels in the closet from now on.

JUSTIN

Wait, I'm confused. They're bath towels. And they're hanging up right outside of the shower. Why can't I use them?

SOPHIE

The towels that hang on the rack above the toilet aren't really towels. They're for show.

Sophie walks off.

JUSTIN

Who are you showing them to? And why are you showing people things they're not allowed to use?

Sophie doesn't respond.

KB shakes her head and smiles.

THE END